

From: Jill Jones-Soderman [<mailto:director@fcvfc.org>]
Sent: Friday, July 15, 2016 4:54 PM
To: 'public@nytimes.com'
Subject: Citizen Journalists request your attention

Dear Ms. Spayd,

As the Director of an organization that deals with the lost, forgotten children of protective parents who never gained the protection, much less attention of Family courts across the country, I have had to become a Citizen Journalist to speak for the disenfranchised and betrayed. I publish the uswhistleblower.org, an online press that features news that goes where others fear to tread.

My clients are spurned by the press in favor of the blah, blah, blah of court officials and Corporate Packaged Marketing that promote big, corrupt government and public officials viewed with such suspicion that we are all endangered by the presence of such figures as Donald Trump. Just as I blame (you), the New York Times and all conventional press for the failure to publish news that truly protects the public interest, I feel encumbered to educate you about that which you need to bring to public attention, and admonish you, in the public interest for not attending to such news.

The rape crisis culture of our society that promotes a tolerance of child sexual abuse – your NYT failed to promote strong/balanced writing about the presence of Mark Gafni in the whole Foods empire. Your articles ranged from tepid to thoroughly insipid. We are a culture that fails to address rape, trafficking, Child trafficking. Massive corruption of judges in Family/Probate courts. We allow judges to fail to be accountable in any manner and fail to properly report judicial abuse. After more than thirteen years of my writing about a judge who was well known for multiple heinous acts, protected by one politician after another (most recently, Governor Chris Christy) Mary Margaret McVeigh has finally been forced off the bench as a result of massive citizen journalistic reporting resulting in charges against her finally being filed. Over years of reporting, this individual was allowed to continue to operate with impunity, wrecking havoc/murder and mayhem in numerous lives. In so many instances we think,,,,,,, if only the press addressed these issues and made the public aware.....

Jill Jones-Soderman, PhD, MSW, MSHS
Director FCVFC/ childforensicadvocacy.org
Publisher US Whistleblower – uswhistleblower.org
866 – 553 - 6931